

Graphic Communication

Welcome to Graphics!

A Level Graphics Communications is part of the Art and Design curriculum. Graphics is a practical course, incorporating a range of creative techniques and processes. You will work on several mini projects in the first year, working with various techniques and design software to explore the purposes of design and working to a brief. You will have the opportunity to explore your own ideas in a creative way and experiment with various techniques, including traditional art techniques and digital design software such as Adobe Photoshop and Adobe Illustrator.

What are we studying?

Throughout the course, you will learn all about how images and text can be used for different purposes to communicate for various purposes.

Logos and branding, packaging design, illustration

Adobe Photoshop and Adobe Illustrator techniques, as well as traditional drawing and mark making techniques.

More on A Level Graphic Communication

A Level Graphic Communication is made up of two course work components

Component 1: Personal Investigation (includes essay)

Component 2: Externally Set Assignment (includes 15 hour controlled assessment)

Student Success!!

Our art students have had 100% pass rate for the last 10 years!

Becky Wright

re.wright@mbro.ac.uk

Sarah Drought

sk.drought@mbro.ac.uk